

Av-DEC is Now Offering Virtual Product Training

Av-DEC has been forefront of innovation in corrosion prevention for over two decades. Av-DEC products perform most effectively when correctly installed, making training imperative in the installation process. In order to ensure the customer and aircraft receive the most effective product performance and protection against corrosion, we've developed a brand new, virtual product training platform that directly mirrors the experience of in-person training.

Simple, Easy to Use & Effective

The training web page has been designed to be simple to navigate, with straightforward directions, and thorough content. Av-DEC Engineers, Product Training Managers and Technical Sales Team Members all worked together to create a detailed, beneficial experience for the end-user.

Training Highlights

The training highlights detailed information for installation of Av-DEC Injectable Sealants, Sealing Systems, Polyurethane Rolled Sealants and Gasket Systems. Under each section, there is eleven various subsections, detailing the installation for each specific product or sealing system.

Each subsection is complete with step-by-step instructions with visuals and text. After watching each video, the user will have the ability to take it a step further by answering quiz-style questions in order to receive a certificate of completion.
